Neighborhood Distribution Centers

Metropolitan Medical Response System (MMRS) is a U.S. Department of Homeland Security contract with local metropolitan governments. The focus of the Sedgwick County MMRS is to provide a strong local medical response if a terrorist attack or public health emergency occurs.

Neighborhood Distribution Centers are designated facilities that would be activated to quickly distribute emergency pharmaceuticals in the event of a public health emergency. These facilities are accessible to all county residents at various schools, community centers and businesses.

To locate your designated Neighborhood Distribution Center based on your address or nearest intersection, visit the Sedgwick County website at www.sedgwickcounty.org and go to the Health Department's page. Maps are also available in the local telephone directories.

For additional information, please contact mmrs@sedgwick.gov.
